Customer Reviews

Seventeen years ago, my friend Judy handed me John Maxwell's classic book, "The 21 Irrefutable Laws of Leadership" As a fledgling leader eager to grow and learn, this was like pouring cold, refreshing water on a thirsty plant. I devoured the book in a day and have referred back to it countless times in my quest to continue to grow and develop as a leader. I have read numerous books about leadership, taking away valuable insights and teachings from each one."H3

Leadership" is the first book I have read in those ensuing years that approaches Maxwell's "21 Laws" in terms of the sheer volume of valuable content, wisdom, and practical application to the gift of leadership. Written by Brad Lomenick, the founder and former president of "Catalyst," this book has the potential to achieve the same level of respect and become a must read for all leaders as any of Maxwell's numerous books on the subject. "H3" looks at three simple questions: Who are you? (Be Humble); Where are you going? (Stay Hungry), and; How will you get there? (Always Hustle). Lomenick examines each of these category questions through the lens of 6-7 different habits that effective leaders must develop if they want to reach their full potential. Like me, Brad Lomenick is a Christian, so our values are closely aligned, which lent even more value to me as I read. I found his list of 20 habits to be particularly helpful in focusing my attention on areas where I need improvement. Like Maxwell's "21 Laws", Lomenick distills each habit down into specific practices that enable the reader to evaluate their own progress in each area.

H3 Leadership seeks to respond to three large overarching questions: HUMBLE: • Who am I? • HUNGRY: • Where do I want to go? • HUSTLE: • How will I get there? • In the book H3 Leadership Lomenick dives further into sub-sets of questions to answer to go along with each of these. Here is the basic overview of the book: HUMBLE Self-Discovery: Know who you are Openness: Share the real you with others Meekness: Remember it's not about you Conviction: Stick to your principles Faith: Prioritize your day so God is first Assignment: Live out your calling HUNGRY Ambition: Develop an appetite for what's next Curiosity: Keep learning Passion: Love what you do Innovation: Stay current, creative, and engaged Inspiration: Nurture a vision for a better tomorrow Bravery: Take calculated risks HUSTLE Excellence: Set standards that scare Stick-with-it-ness: Take the long view Execution: Commit to completion Team Building: Create an environment that attracts and retains the best and brightest Partnership: Collaborate with colleagues and competitors Margin: Nurture healthier rhythms Generosity: Leave the world a better place Succession: Find power in passing the baton While there is much that I like about this book and many lessons a leader can take away from it there is a lot of information that can be applied. I can see myself re-reading this a couple more times in various seasons. For today I will focus on two big takeaways that can be challenges for me. My Two Big Takeaways: A Habit of Stick-With-It-Ness: Take the Long View The modern tendency is to assume that "newer" always means "better."
